

LSU's Tigers To Invade Wildcat Lair

By JOHNNY FITZWATER
The Kentucky Wildcats, banged-up and disappointed, have spent five days this week in the wind and rain preparing for the Louisiana State Bayou Bengals, who invade Stoll Field tomorrow night. The Tigers were last season's national champions and are making a definite move to gain this distinction again. The Paul Dietzel coached Tigers are currently No. 1 in both the AP and UPI polls. The Chinese Bandits and company will arrive at Bluegrass Field today at 3 p.m. and are expected to spend time on the UK turf working out travel weary muscles. The arrival will mark only the second time in four years that the Tigers have faced the Cats in Lexington. It will also be the second time in recent seasons that a national champion has played here. Previously, it was Maryland in 1954 with Kentucky losing 20-0. In 1951 Kentucky met Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl and won 13-7 for the only win ever posted against a national champ. The boys of the Blue and White have already kicked themselves out of the SEC running by dropping to Georgia Tech, Mississippi, and Auburn, but still a few students of the sport think they can turn spoiler before late November. Even though the records of the two teams are almost diametrically opposite, a near capacity crowd pushing the 35,000 mark is expected to see the tilt. The game will be the first in the conference for LSU. Not only will they be opening a defense of their SEC crown that was taken in an undefeated, untied campaign last winter, but they will be holding up the longest current win streak in America—a 16 straight mark. Kentucky will be trying to get out of last place in the conference and to avoid matching last year's record of four defeats. The experts aren't giving the Cats any chance at all of pulling an upset that will go down in history, if it occurs. After the 33-0 loss on Saturday at Auburn, the sportswriters of the south got the impression that the good showing Kentucky had made in previous games wasn't as fine as it seemed. After 16 quarters of grid action, Glenn Ed Shaw has proven himself the top back in the Cat camp with a 3.9 rushing average. Charlie Sturgeon is second among the regulars with a 3.8 average. Cal Bird, the other regular back, has been handcuffed for a 1.7 average. The Wildcats, heralded during the preseason reports as a break away team and an explosive bunch, have recorded only two runs over 25 yards. Gary Cochran broke loose for 30 yards against Detroit and Jim Poynter raced 26 yards in the same game. Also the UK offensive machine has obviously been missing. In the first four games they scored only 44 points to 70 by the opposition. On the other hand, the defense has shown several bright spots. The brightest of all has been Lloyd Hodge, converted center who handles the line-backing chores.

Also Bob Talamini, Irv Goode, Cullen Wilson, and George Boone have turned in some rugged performances on defense. LSU will be physically and mentally ready for a supreme effort, according to Kentucky scouts. Led by the fabulous (to say the least) All-American halfback Billy Cannon and All-American center Max Fugler, the Bengals have rolled with ease past Rice, TCU, Baylor, and Miami (Fla.). "They without a doubt have the finest backfield material in the country," Coach Blanton Collier points out. "In addition to Cannon, the White team in LSU's three-team system boasts an outstanding passer in Warren Rabb and a potentially great fullback in Donnie Daye," Collier said.

UK Barristers Don Derbies Amid Cheers

By BILL NEIKIRK
Kernel Editor

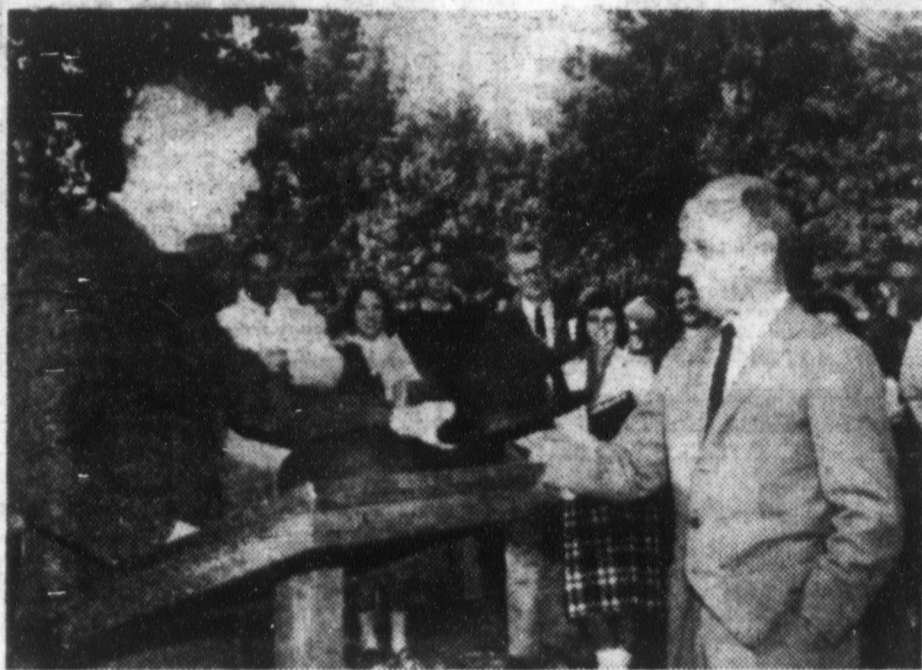

Derbies, symbolic of togetherness, unity, and courage, were donned by UK Law students yesterday in a ceremony marked with dignified hilarity. The lawyers therefore revived a pre-World War I custom of wearing derbies. The day, named "Don The Derby Day" by the ebullient barristers, was highlighted by flowing and flowery speeches; presentation of a derby to Law Prof. Richard D. Gilliam, and an oath and song by the lawyers.

The oath said the lawyers would refrain from whistling and screaming at "pulchritudinous young ladies, unless led by an irresistible desire." The last phrase of the oath was met with boisterous cheers from the barristers. Ken Kusch, president of the Student Bar Association which is sponsoring the derby custom, presided at the ceremony on the steps of Lafferty Hall and said the lawyers would now "maintain their proper dignity" on campus. Leslie Aberson presented the derby to Gilliam amid cheers and bravos from the lawyers. It was too big and fell below his ears. The lawyers also proclaimed that one day would be set aside each October to celebrate "Don The Derby Day." But Dale Burchette gave the gathering more background on why the lawyers were wearing derbies. His speech was cheered and braved. "With the coming of World War I," he said, "the tradition was lost. After the war, many students came into these halls and it is only appropriate that we revive this ancient tradition." Burchette added that it was a symbol of brotherhood and unity, "and yes, even of our courage." Henry Wilhoite, in a brief speech, said: "Indeed this is a somber occasion and by necessity, it is a sober one." The barristers cheered. Some let out with bravos. "We will exchange the sword of the war for the derby, making the transformation to gentlemen, lawyers, and squires."

Bill Paxton led the students in the "solemn" oath, written in untranslatable Latin, and Roy Woodall led the song, written by Julius Rather. Jim Prater read the official proclamation, which in part, said: "Be it resolved that we, the barristers of Lafferty Hall, in order to promote a more perfect union, to renew tradition, and to

Concert Series Features Spanish Ballet Tonight

Roberto Iglesias and his noted Spanish Dance Company, who once performed in Carnegie Hall, will appear tonight in the Coliseum at 8:15 p.m. This is a part of the company's second coast to coast tour of the United States and Canada. The Lexington appearance, sponsored by the Central Kentucky Concert-Lecture Association, is one of 70 that the group will make in cities throughout the United States and Canada.

During the three and a half years that the company has been in existence, it has appeared in most of the Western world's capitals, touring extensively in Europe and South America.

The choreography for the group, created by Iglesias himself, was well viewed by cities who have described it as "full of originality and dramatic power, based on the purest examples of Flamenco and other native Spanish sources."

Iglesias himself, grandson of a former president of Guatemala, studied in Mexico, Spain, and the United States. He has been described as the most important new personality to emerge in the Spanish dance field since Antonio.

Sigma Chi Derby To Be Held Saturday

By CHRISTA FINLEY

Amid a bevy of splashed tomatoes, broken eggs, and a barrage of whipped cream, pledges will have a chance to win honors for their individual sororities at the annual Sigma Chi Derby tomorrow afternoon. An October tradition on campus for the past ten years, the derby is held partially for the purpose of acquainting the pledges with each other through friendly competition. Pledges of all ten sororities will take part in the various events of the derby, which will begin at 1:30 p.m. on the intramural field behind the SUB. The first event will require pledges to run with an orange balanced between their foreheads.

Then comes the tomato throw, which is one of the oldest derby events being used this year. One girl from each sorority will throw tomatoes at a target which will be the head of a Sigma Chi pledge. The third event will find pledges, with the heartiest appetites vying in a chocolate meringue pie eating foray. A flag chase will follow this contest. Pledges will attempt to capture flags tied to the belts of Sigma Chi's, who will defend themselves with cans of whipped cream. Next will be a relay race in which the pledges will try to fill a Coke bottle using a thimble, threading a needle, and keeping a peanut in a spoon while running.

Also included is a three-legged race, and a race which requires the girls to run with oil cans on their feet. The sixth event will be an egg toss in which two girls will toss an egg back and forth, slowly increasing the distance between them. The two covering the greatest distance without breaking their eggs are the winners. A beauty contest will climax the derby. Two girls from each sorority will be judged on their poise, beauty, and figure. Three judges will choose the queen. Each event will be graded on a point system, three points for first place, two for second place, and one for third place. Points will be totaled, and the sorority having the greatest number will receive a rotating trophy, currently held by Alpha Gamma Delta. The queen candidates chosen by press time were Frances Frye and Lois K. Murphy, Alpha Xi Delta; Jan Moreland and Carolyn Reid, Chi Omega; Peggy Cowgell and Ann Evans, Delta Delta Delta; Joan Becker and Sue Ramsey, Alpha Delta Pi; Sue Hendritz and Jeannine Lunsford, Delta Zeta. Judy Luther and Pat Sholtz, Zeta Tau Alpha; Dee Merrick and Cookie Leete, Alpha Gamma Delta; and Jeannie Lester, and Linda Bibb, Kappa Delta. Candidates from Kappa Kappa Gamma and Kappa Alpha Theta had not been chosen in time to be included in today's paper.

Date Is Set For Dental Bids Opening

Bids for construction of the dental wing in the UK Medical Center will be opened in Frankfort on Nov. 17, state officials announced Wednesday. The new wing is expected to cost about 2.6 million dollars, medical school officials said. Bids will call for the furnishing of labor, supplies, and equipment. Construction on the Med Center addition will begin as soon as the contractor can get to the job after the contract is let about Dec. 1, officials said. Continued on Page 3

Tournament To Open UK Debate Season

The UK debate team will open its season at the second annual Kentucky Thoroughbred Debate Tournament Oct. 23 and 24 in the Fine Arts Building.

Dr. Gifford Blyton, team coach, said there would be 16 teams participating in the tournament.

The national intercollegiate debate question for the current school year is "Resolved: That Congress should be given the power to reserve decisions of the Supreme Court."

Members of the team are John Bozeman, Kathleen Cannon, Sharon Chenault, Deno Curris, Janice Decker, Lessley Decker, Geri Denbo, Tex Fitzgerald, Marietta Foraker, Roger Fortin, Reuben Garrett, Robert Hawkins, Dale Loar, Ronald Morgan, Donald Polly, Lucy Salmon, Alec Stone, Roger Woeste, and Gary Wright.

Colleges attending the Thoroughbred Tournament other than UK are Bellarmine, Capital University, Marquette, Mississippi Southern, Notre Dame, Ohio State, the U.S. Military Academy, South Carolina, Vanderbilt, Wheaton State, Xavier, Southern Illinois, and two other colleges to be announced later.

Other scheduled events of the UK debate team are:

Mercer University, Oct. 29-31; Tau Kappa Alpha regional tournament at Denison University, Nov. 14; University of Detroit, Nov. 9-10; Union College, Nov. 10, when the UK debaters will meet a University of Cambridge team.

The Carolina Forensics Tournament, University of South Carolina, Nov. 13-14; Purdue University, Nov. 19-21; Northwestern University, Dec. 4-5; the Dixie Classic tournament at Wake Forest on Dec. 10-12; the University of Illinois, Dec. 12.

Georgetown College (Ky.), Jan. 9; University of Miami, Jan. 28-30; University of Maryland for the Capitol Hill tournament, Feb. 25-27; Notre Dame University, March 4-5; West Point for the West Point regional tournament, March 11-12.

The University of Utah for the national Tau Kappa Alpha tournament, March 21-23; Bellarmine College, April 8-9; West Point for the West Point national tournament, April 20-23; and Marquette University, May 6-7.

Meat Judging Team Attends Exposition

The UK meat judging team will participate in the American Royal Livestock Exposition in Kansas City this week.

Competing will be Harold Grooms, Hugh Mahin, Robert Megibben and Robert Rogers.

Dr. James D. Kemp, professor of animal husbandry, coaches the team and will accompany them.

Dates for the exposition are Oct. 17-22.

UN Trip

The YMCA and YWCA will jointly sponsor a UN seminar trip from Nov. 4-8.

Those interested in attending the seminar should sign up in one of the YMCA offices in the SUB before Oct. 24.

The dental wing is the fourth phase in construction of the Albert B. Chandler Medical Center.

The center's power plant is ready for operation and the Medical Sciences Building, the core of the center, will be occupied before this year is out, or very shortly after the new year begins. Construction recently began on the 400 bed teaching hospital.

The dental instruction area will be attached to the Medical Sciences Building exactly as the other sections.

Completion date for the dental wing is set for the spring, 1961.

Pencil Sharpeners

Needle In A Haystack

Last year the UK Maintenance and Operations Department mounted on the walls of campus buildings streamlined ash trays in order to curtail students from placing their cigarette butts on floors. This was to save the department extra time and effort.

But, we ask, after all this money was spent on ash trays, why hasn't the University taken steps to provide pencil sharpeners for campus classroom buildings? As it is, students have to sharpen their pencils before they leave for school or else use their worn-out razor blade or trusty Barlow knife.

Where is a pencil sharpener to be found on this campus? You can find them in the office of professors or with UK secretaries, or occasionally, in a study hall. Otherwise, there are none. When the professors and secretaries usually resent students packing into their offices to sharpen pencils, the student is left bluntly without a sharpener.

For those teachers of hygiene who attempt to stress cleanliness, it must be particularly irking when they see students knawing at a pencil on which the point had snapped or dulled.

It is even more depressing for the student who has to carry 15 pencils around with him every day because he can't get one sharpened.

But, to the unsuspecting freshman, finding a pencil sharpener at the University becomes one of his major frustrations as a member of that class.

It's like hunting for that old bugaboo, the needle in a haystack.

Kernels

A University professor, wanting to get an article in the Kernel, made sure his information arrived safely yesterday.

He sent us a letter from a UK building special delivery.

Stamped three times "Special Delivery," the letter had 34 cents in stamps on it.

His story is in today's Kernel.

"Some rain last night, eh, George."

Views On Religion, Women, And Education

Another Catholic Answers

To The Editor:

Dear Classmate:

When I told our humanities professor that I am a Catholic and consequently have to have permission to read "Madame Bovary" (a fact I knew only the day before from reading the October issue of the Catholic Digest) I knew that I would provoke a reaction that I expected may not be pleasant; yet yours (Readers' Forum, Oct. 8) shocked me. You put us down on the lowest level of the stupid, superstitious, etc. We would have no self respect, if I keep silent, as you probably expected.

You imply that you are not prejudiced. Your letter shows that the contrary is true. Tell me, what do you know about the Index, how it works, what its purposes are, why the Catholic Church instituted it. If you pretend to know, give me solid proof. I assure you that we respect your right to express your disagreement, to the extent that we still will think you have as much chance to go to heaven as a faithful Catholic has, as surely as that an unfaithful one will be condemned.

However, is it necessary that your name be withheld? I hope you did not request it, did you? And why do you need to write in the Kernel at all? Don't we meet twice a week, which gives you ample chance to question me and me to explain? So, let us meet and sit down, talk quietly, reasonably, and respectful of one another's convictions.

Then you mentioned "intellectual freedom" etc. All big, empty catchwords, unbecoming of a college student. Take for example the word "freedom." Don't you use it too rashly; don't you imply that freedom means no law, no restrictions? Yet it never means unrestrictedness because it is not an end in itself, but a means to an end, which is our happiness on this earth and in the kingdom come.

And a means is good, freedom is good, if it serves us best to attain that purpose. In other words, if the excesses of this freedom constitute a hindrance to the attainment of that purpose, then it must be curtailed accordingly. That is why the Catholic Church finds it necessary to impose the Index on her children. That is why we think differently from you about the Index and see in it the wisdom of the church (though many times it can be so unpleasant). That is why outside religion there is no unlimited freedom either. Dear friend, reflect upon that word and be assured that the consequences are wholesome.

As to the placing of "Madame Bovary" on the index, let us go back to the circumstances under which it took place. The dedication of the book gives a hint and the introduction states it more clearly where it writes: "... An editor, the printer, and Flaubert found themselves prosecuted for 'outrage of public morals and religion.'" Make a distinction between the customs then and now!

Think about the above. Be a really broadminded, unprejudiced, freedom-loving person, a true champion of liberty, and remember: We respect your right to disagree with us, even as we expect you to respect our convictions. Try to understand your "opponent's point of view before launching an attack. Don't attack your own distorted version. You go to a chemist if you do not understand a chemical problem. Why not in religious matters go to those who profess that faith? With regard to Catholicism, why not ask one of the 800 or more Catholic students on this campus. Or go to a priest. Any priest will gladly spend his available time to answer any question, providing that you are sincere. Or go to a Catholic Church, any one; you will find in the entrance pamphlets for a nickel or a dime each containing a lot of information.

This is all I want to say. I hope to meet you soon. Finally excuse me for my poor English; you know that I am a foreigner.

WILLIBRODUS HARJADI

Female Felines

To The Editor:

A new era has been born at UK. It is an era in which politeness and mannerly behavior has become extinct in the female gender; an era where such behavior is expected of the male and forgotten by the female. These are, indeed, times that "try" men's souls; times when gentlemanly behavior has been taken for granted by women and "thank you" in return has become antiquated. This is an era in which, to the coeds, the words "excuse me" have become feudal, and futile for any man expecting to hear them.

How many men on campus have become victims of girls who infiltrate through doorways, skip down the halls, and leap down whole flights of stairs, oblivious to what might be in the way? When such a collision occurs, they curl their upper lip, and look at you with an expression of, "Well, earth man, ask forgiveness." How many times have men watched while streams of girls cross in front of them in the cafeteria without uttering the simple phrase, "excuse me," or "thank you."

Perhaps, if girls would spend a little more time in trying to behave like ladies, and less time in trying to look like ladies, such a degeneracy on campus might be prevented. In conclusion, I have a poem dedicated to all the "campus flowers" who fall into this category.

To think that I should never see,
A track star near as fast as thee,
Or one who could so well exclude,
Behavior that is quite so rude.

Penetrating Analysis?

To The Editor:

The Tuesday Kernel carried the following paragraph:

"Dean Martin attributed the increase in college enrollment to an increase in the number of students graduating from high school and a larger percentage of these students attending college."

That's a penetrating analysis. Wonder where he got his first clue?

Jam, Hay, Eggs Round Out Menu For Weekend

By ALICE AKIN

Can't believe the whole campus has gone ape over jam sessions.

There was Wednesday and the Tri Delt jam session and now they tell me that again today Rose Street will echo the sounds of the "Redcoats" blasting forth from the ADPI house.

And just to prove that everyone is original in planning parties, the KA's and Sigma Nu's will swing out to Joyland tomorrow afternoon for another pregame main. Hope everyone rests up before the SUB jam fest next Wednesday from 3-5 p.m.

Sigma Chi Derby is tomorrow afternoon with the usual egg toss, tomato throw, orange race, and pie eating contest. Sorority pledges will be in there competing for the trophy.

Naturally everyone is anxious to see who will capture the queen title. Girls will be judged on poise, looks, and general architecture.

If you're just a country kid at heart, you're really in luck tonight. Canterbury Club, AGR's, DTD's, and Triangles have hayrides scheduled and you know what fun it is to ride on a barrel full of hay. (Or is that hay in those barrels?)

If you see a motorcade of buses parked with coeds clad in green sweatshirts this afternoon, don't be alarmed! It's just the KD's departing for Camp Daniel Boone on their second annual retreat.

Roughing it in the windy woods for the night will certainly bring activities and pledges closer together. But all kidding aside, this idea which the KD's were first to introduce on UK's campus, tops all slumber parties and the like for getting the new members acquainted with the actives.

The Phi Sigs are planning a slightly unusual activity. Believe it or not, they're celebrating New Year's Eve tonight with a "Can't Wait Party."

Guess that just about does it for this week. Oh, yes, I do have one more little society item. Mr. Henry Pepper and Mr. A. W. Simmons entertained guests last Saturday with a brunch at their bachelor penthouse on Maxwell Manor.

After a delicious meal of pickled buffalo tongues and weiners, prepared by Chef Pep, the party attended the races at Keeneland.

And, girls, LXA has a wonderful new policy. The fraternity sends each girl who gets pinned to a Greek a white rose and a congratulatory note. Aren't they sweet?

LSU Will Use Cannon To Scuttle Listing Cats

By STEWART HEDGER

Don't look now, but in the wake of the mighty Plainsmen of Auburn a new and perhaps even more violent battleship is approaching the Stoll Field harbor and it looks like there may be more stormy seas ahead.

The letters on the bow of this new battleship read LSU. The ship is manned by an oriental sounding crew who go by the name of the Chinese Bandits. Here is a battle-worthy craft and crew, which for the past season and a half has been sinking their rivals like so many rowboats.

With Coach Paul Dietzel charting the course and quarterback Warren Rabb at the helm, rivals find the LSU an extremely rugged foe with little chance of being capsized.

But no battleship would dare go into combat without the heaviest available artillery. The LSU has some of the heaviest artillery on the seven seas of football. Their biggest gun is a cannon, Billy Cannon, that is.

One has to go a long way back through Southeastern Conference records to find a halfback with the stature of this 208 pound junior from Baton Rouge.

Cannon has size, exceptional strength, speed, combativeness, and a bright mind. These qualities molded together mean trouble for any craft which sails within striking distance of the LSU's guns.

Cannon was on target last week, as he accounted for 90 yards rushing and one touchdown to torpedo Miami broadside, 27-3, and give the LSU its 16th consecutive battle ribbon.

The "Dixie Flyer" was instrumental in the Tigers' most recent victories over the Blue Grass cruiser, 21-0 in 1957, and 32-7 last year. However, both of those were churned out in the comfortable confines of the Tiger home port. The LSU has never been victorious in the Stoll Field aquarium.

In 1958, the former 100-yard champion scored eleven touchdowns, kicked four extra points, and ran for two conversions for a total of 74 points. The total was good for SEC leadership. After four games in 1959, he has accumulated 20 points to hold first place in the race.

Cannon has been sensational during his team's first four battles, and will be regarded as a marked man throughout the season. The threat he poses to the defense makes it easier for his teammates to gain some additional yardage.

In addition to his supreme offensive abilities, he is regarded as one of the best blockers and tacklers on a team rated high in both categories.

With the Chinese Bandits, the Go Team, the White Team, and all the other Paul Dietzel emotional gimmicks, the boys from the Bayou country would be just another good football team struggling to win their share of the victories, if they did not have the incomparable Cannon to guide them through the more choppy waters.

So here's a warning to all ships at sea—beware the craft bearing the flag of the skull and chopsticks. This battle seasoned water-craft has sent more than a few enemies to the bottom of Grid-iron Sea. If you issue a challenge to this formidable craft, be certain you possess more than a mere kayak to do battle.

Let's hope for a calm sea and a crafty navigator to bring the Cats out of drydock.

Bootleg Play Fakes Off-Tackle Slant

Fitz's Facts

By John Fitzwater

In just 46 days the UK basketball team will go into action and the football season will have passed, leaving only the New Year's Day Bowl tilts for the gridiron. By all indications, that is looking back at the 1958-59 Cats, we should be murder.

Since the season ended in March three lads have been lost to the Big Blue. Bobby Shusher, and Howard Dardeen for sure, and Carroll Burchett temporary. This leaves Ned Jennings and Don Mills at the center post, Dickie Parsons, Sid Cohen, and Benny Coffman at guards and All-American candidate Bill Lickert at one forward slot. Al Robinson, fine shooting Lexington product, is also in line for duty out front.

The remainder of the Kentucky cage machine will be made up of seven sophomores who combined to produce a 6-3 frosh record last winter.

A rundown of these seven men points in the direction of more strength at guard. The real standouts for the Kittens were Larry Pursiful, speedball from Four Mile, and long shooting Eddie Mason of Elizabethtown. Other names along the list are Harry Hurd, Jim McDonald, Allen Feldhaus, Ray Roberts, and Herky Rupp.

Pursiful was tremendous as a Kitten, racking up a 19.1 average and hitting almost 59 percent from the field. He hit for 186 points in nine games.

Mason took second spot among the freshmen with an 18.7 average. Eddie scored 176 points and hit 42 per cent of his shots. He is a very valuable man to have in the game in one sense—he received 74 foul shots in the nine games.

Feldhaus averaged 12.7, McDonald hit for 10.5 and Roberts and Rupp hit 6.1 and 3.6 respectively.

Coach Adolph Rupp held a picture taking session on Wednesday, and yesterday he got down to serious business with his 14 man squad.

Coronation Ball

The annual Coronation Ball sponsored by Pershing Rifles has been scheduled for November 14. Tickets will soon go on sale for the dance to be held in the SUB Ballroom.

By PAUL DIETZEL
 Head Coach, Louisiana State
 BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—The bootleg pass play fakes the exact play we discussed in the first article. It shows the off-tackle slant all the way.

Everyone in the line of scrimmage does exactly the same thing as he does on the off-tackle slant with the exception of the men involved in the pattern.

The left tackle hooks the man over him. The right end runs the same route as in the second article, which was the off-tackle option play.

The quarterback fakes the hand-off to the left halfback and then "stomachs the ball" and dips his left shoulder, so as to hide the ball from the defensive right end.

As soon as the quarterback clears his left halfback, he takes a quick look at the left end to find him and ascertain what his next move will be.

If the quarterback can gain five yards he will run the ball. If the quarterback cannot gain five yards he will throw the ball to his left end.

Cats Meet Hanover

sophomores Dave Purdy and John Baxter.

Last year UK defeated Hanover 19-38. But this small Indiana school always comes up with a strong group of distance runners.

Three years ago they upset Kentucky's great freshman team that was sparked by E. G. Plummer and Whelan. That year's frosh team lost only twice with one loss being avenged later.

This Saturday's meet begins at approximately 12:30, following a freshman meet with Berea Foundation high school.

Freshmen Keith Locke and Allen Cleaver placed one-two to edge the Morehead State College varsity 27-29 Tuesday amid a drizzling rain.

Law Teams Call To Post Sounded To Compete By UK Music Major For Honors

Teams representing two UK College of Law clubs will compete before the Kentucky Court of Appeals today.

The teams will be vying for the chance to represent the University in the National Intercollegiate Moot Court Competition sponsored by the New York City Bar Association.

The two teams, Julius E. Rather and Charles E. English representing the Louis Brandeis Club, and C. Dale Burchett and Perry R. White Jr. representing the Fred M. Vinson Club, were the first-round winners in the College of Law's annual moot court competition Monday and Tuesday nights.

The case which the teams will present to the Court of Appeals, Brandeis Club presenting the appellant side and the Vinson Club presenting the appellee views, centers around the legality of a social worker entering the home of a dope addict without a search warrant to check the welfare of her small daughter.

The winning club will represent UK at regional competition in St. Louis in November.

By GARNETT BROWN

"And here come the horses to the post." They're called by the trumpet of Harry Rich, a junior music major at UK.

Harry is from Warrensburg, N. Y., and plays in the UK symphonic band. He has been playing the trumpet since he was in the fifth grade.

When asked how he got the rather "different" job at the Keeneland race track, Harry told us it started when he was a freshman.

He had a friend who played there at the time. One day the friend was unable to go to work, and he wanted Harry to play in his place at the track. Harry did, and he has been playing the trumpet at the races off and on for the last three years.

This isn't Harry's only job. Along with being a fulltime student and his work at Keeneland, Harry also works part time at the Campbell House as a bus boy.

And he still finds time to get together with a small group of musicians on Wednesday nights to play for their own enjoyment. Harry said he enjoys both classical music and jazz.

He lives in an apartment he refers to affectionately as Pi Tau Hinkle's, and cooks his own meals "out of necessity."

Harry is not the only UK student wearing silks at Keeneland. One of the other more regular trumpet players is Pete Conley, also a music major.

As to Harry's future, he says, "I'd like to go into music education, but I'm not sure yet."

And in case you wondered, he doesn't play the horses; we asked.

Game Seats

Phil Austin, Student Congress president, announced late yesterday that Greeks, law students, and their dates will be permitted to sit in groups at the UK-LSU game Saturday.

These students must enter Gate 3, Section B before 7:45 p.m., he said.
